2016 DURANT VINEYARD CHARDONNAY

This has a terrific combination of richness, texture, fruit and acidity. The aromatics combine golden delicious apples, waffles and a light nutty character. The wine definitely has a density of texture but it is nicely cut with bright acidity making it serious and deft all at the same time. Currently there doesn't seem to be any "signature style" to the new thinking of Oregon Chardonnay but many producers are shooting for something in a Chablis-like genre. Most assuredly this is not that. However, it is not heavy handed or cloying. We think this is a really, really lovely first effort that is immensely enjoyable and (we think) should do well over a decent period of years. We think you won't want to wait on it though.
